Calvert Cliffs

Location: Annapolis, MD

Owner: Constellation Energy

Near-miss: A leaky roof allowed rainwater to short out electrical equipment. One reactor automatically shut down. A worn-out protective device that workers had not replaced because of cost-cutting efforts allowed electrical problems to trigger an automatic shutdown of a second reactor. Investigation found that roof leakage had been a recurring problem since 2002 and the company had knowingly tolerated it. Workers had responded to one leak "by covering the panel with a plastic sheet and catching the leakage in a bucket."
