December 21, 2008 ⁞ light snow; mist | 33 °f

Windows 20k
MP3 32k
Weekend Edition

Windows 20k
MP3 32k
Weekend Edition

WNYC2 Classical
Now Playing

Music Playlists »
RSS Feeds
Audio Help »

Program Schedule

Arts & Ideas

Politics & Society

Science & Technology

NY Metro

Economy

News

More on Entergy v. Riverkeeper

by Soterios Johnson and Greg Clary

▶ 00:00 ▬▬▬▬▬▬ 00:00 ⧉ ◀)))

Download MP3 | Embed HTML

NEW YORK, NY December 02, 2008 —Both sides are preparing to make their arguments today before the U.S. Supreme Court in the case of Entergy Corporation v. Riverkeeper.

The owner of the Indian Point nuclear power station is petitioning to halt an order that would require an expensive new cooling system be installed there. The state of New York and the environmental group Riverkeeper argue the current cooling system destroys too many fish and fish eggs in the Hudson River.

Greg Clary has been following the case for the Westchester Journal-News.

RELATED CONTENT

Court Weighs Power Plant Costs vs. Protecting Fish (12/02/2008)

Governors to Press Obama for Help With Shortfalls (12/02/2008)

2nd FBI Informant Takes Stand in Fort Dix Trial (12/01/2008)
Law to Make "Doorbuster Sales" Safer (12/01/2008)
Early Bird Shoppers Trample Wal Mart Employee (11/28/2008)
Divers Plumb the Depths of City's Water System (11/24/2008)

EMAIL SHARE
PRINT

wNYC Newsroom

Governor Paterson Visits Troops in Iraq

Ecuadorean Man Killed in Alleged Bias Crime Laid to Rest

Laid Off Media Workers Pick up the Pieces

Bloomberg Backs off Plan to Overhaul Senior Centers

Paterson Defends His Budget

More

npr Top Stories

Caretakers For Burn Victims Suffer Emotional Toll

Inauguration: Expect Nonstop Drink, Crowds

Obama's Science Team: A Change Of Climate?

More

AP Top Stories

Passengers escape burning jet in Denver; 38
hurt

New storm strikes
Northwest, challenges
travelers

Biden to oversee efforts aimed at middle class

More

BBC World News

IMF urges spending to spur growth

Mumbai attack hotels
greet guests

Lockerbie marks 20th anniversary

More