EVACUATE NOW!: This is Not a Drill

August 15, 2010 posted by Bob Nichols · 7 Comments

REUTERS / Denis Sinyakov - Forest fires hit areas remaining radioactive since the Chernobyl disaster in 1986.

(San Francisco) – Russia is burning down this summer. The smoke is engulfing Moscow and the European Union. Embassies are emptying.

What's the deal?

Thousands of forest fires are burning all over Russia. More importantly, the nuclear weapons factories and reactors around Mayak and the former Soviet Union's Uranium Project are going up in smoke. The smoke is toxic and radioactive in every possible sense of the words.

Russian forest fires are burning down old H-Bomb factory areas and the Chernobyl poisoned woodlands. This holds the virtual certainty of at least 241,000,000 Lethal Doses of radioactivity becoming air borne during a fire. Due to peculiar nuclear forces the tiny ceramicized radioactive particles stay in the air for months or even years till they are "rained out" by some form of precipitation.

Snowflake edges are particularly good scavengers of radioactive particles.

Two US Air Force C130s just flew into Moscow. Livermore Nuclear Weapons Lab, or one of the seven other nuclear weapons labs in the US, are more than likely involved. Ask yourself this. What on earth could have scared the Russian nuke forces enough to call in their old hated Cold War foe – the US Air Force – for help?

There is a simple way to let the people of the world know what is going on with airborne Chernobyl and Mayak data. We paid for all the data, anyway, whether Russian, American or European Union Data.

Free the Data. Release it to the InterNet all over the world and let people decide for themselves which country is safe enough for their families to live in.

If you are planning a trip to Europe or Russia – don't go. If you are already there – leave immediately. If you have family or friends there – get them out if you can. This is not a drill. It is the real deal.

Another way to look at the Mayak national sacrifice zone in Russia is that the old Soviet Union manufactured 30,000 global thermonuclear weapons. There were numerous "accidents" at Mayak that weren't supposed to happen and "officially" never did happen. The government lied, of course.

Thousands of forest fires are burning in Russia around old H-Bomb factories.

The 1,000 sq km around the Mayak bomb factory is one of the most contaminated areas on Earth because the Mayak Uranium Project manufactured the most poisonous substances on Earth for the most lethal weapons on Earth.

Manufacturing thermonuclear weapons is a really nasty business. As far as Weapons of Mass Destruction goes, there are the real McCoy.

As of 8/15/2010 all personnel in Russia and the European Union are advised to evacuate immediately. I repeat. This is not a drill. If you can't leave, get your kids out. It may be too late already.

How much bigger than Chernobyl was the Mayak Nuclear "accident?"

Mayak was a "closed city" back in the days of the old Soviet Union, the USSR. There were many nuclear accidents and spills as there are at the worlds few giant nuke weapons factories, no matter the country. Human error and all that, y'know?

That being said the nuclear "accident" in 1957 was really bad. In terms of today's radioactivity Mayak is at least fifteen times bigger and more dangerous than the current radiation from the Chernobyl explosion.

Sure thing, you can count on it.

I know what you mean, ftf911, I'm a working writer and it is hard for me to find words to describe the conditions. It truly is like another planet; but, then ya wake up and it is right here on earth. Mayak Lake, for example is dangerous to even walk near 'cos it has so much Gamma radiation from radioactive discharges from the H-Bomb factories.

That the Chernobyl Exclusion Zone is being burned is a disaster.

There is a piece going around on NPR that one grad student, Aaron Hohl, ran a computer model minimizing the risks. But this is nuts,

How can he know what is in the Chernobyl Exclusion Zone?

Your EVACUATE NOW warning is right-on.

Trying to minimize it, eh?

What do you think he is trying to do by minimizing hundreds of millions of Lethal Doses, mal?
