(Reuters) - Japanese nuclear authorities there was a high possibility that nuclear reactor at Tokyo Electric Power's Daiichi be melting or have melted, Jiji news agency reported.

Experts have said that if the fuel rods have been damaged could develop into a breach of the nuclear reactor vessel then becomes one of how strong the containment structure vessel is and whether it has been undermined by the earthquake.

For this to happen the electric grid failed when the nuclear p damage from the earthquake. Kinda like cutting your nose c generators failed? How? they don't transmit mechanical ene and they themselves are the epitome of redundancy which c any size earthquake. Also, the batteries somehow failed to p all failed also? What about an aqueduct from a volcano lake ocean? How about a coal run boiler? How about huge CAT illegal Korean immigrants operating hand pumps? Common
