

Belgium: Paul Magonette says no to mobile phones for children

Friday 7 November 2008 by elektrose

The minister responsible for consumer protection, Paul Magonette, will not authorise the marketing in Belgium of mobile phones intended for children. "With this type of phone children can actually be exposed to mechanical dangers or the risks of radiation. In fact scientists all recognise that it is necessary to limit children's exposure to cumulative amounts of radiation, even if not much is yet known about how sensitive they are to radio waves."
