

Search Our Site

Home RedState Guns & Patriots Family Events Uncommon Knowledge Ann C

Share 11K 534 Print Forward

SunPower: Twice As Bad As Solyndra, Twice As Bad For Obama

298 Comments

Congressman's son lobbied for failing solar panel company
by Neil W. McCabe

10/11/2011

Recommend

11012 recommendations. Sign Up to see what your friends recommend.

A photovoltaic solar panel ranch similar to the California Solar Valley Ranch under construction by SunPower in the state's San Luis Obispo County. The $1.2 billion loan guarantee to support the project was finalized in hours before the loan program expired Sept. 30. The company announced Aug. 5 that it will build the panels for the ranch at a new factory it will open in Mexico.

DOE photo

How did a failing California solar company, buffeted by short sellers and shareholder lawsuits, receive a $1.2 billion federal loan guarantee for a photovoltaic electricity ranch project—three weeks after it announced it was building new manufacturing plant in Mexicali, Mexico, to build the panels for the project.

The company, SunPower (SPWR-NASDAQ), now carries $820 million in debt, an amount $20 million greater than its market capitalization. If SunPower was a bank, the feds would shut it down. Instead, it received a lifeline twice the size of the money sent down the Solyndra drain.

Two men with insight into the process are SunPower rooter Rep. George R. Miller III, (D.-Calif.), the senior Democrat on the House Education and Workforce Committee and the co-chairman of the Democratic Steering and Policy Committee, and his SunPower lobbyist son, George Miller IV.

Miller the Elder is a strong advocate for SunPower, which converted an old Richmond, Calif., Ford plant in his district to a panel-manufacturing facility.

The congressman hosted an Oct. 14, 2010, tour of the plant with company CEO Thomas H. Werner and Interior Secretary Kenneth L. Salazar to promote the company's fortunes.

"The path to a clean energy economy starts here, in places like SunPower's research and development facility," said Salazar during the tour.

"The work that comes from these facilities transforms renewable energy ideas into a reality. When renewable energy companies continue to invest in places like California, the realization of a new energy future is within our reach," he said.

Miller the Elder said he was grateful for Salazar's interest.

"We've worked hard to make renewable energy a priority because it represents America's future economic growth. Today, businesses like SunPower are moving forward, hiring 200 people for good clean energy jobs in the East Bay," he said.

"By fostering a business climate that encourages companies like SunPower, even more good jobs will be created locally, we'll reduce demand for dirty energy sources, and we'll cut customers' utility bills. That's the right direction," he said.

SunPower's political action committee (PAC) was not shy about participating in the political process either.

According to the SunPower PAC filings for its activities in the 2010 midterm election campaign cycle, it donated more than $36,000. Of the $15,650 donated to House and Senate candidates, $14,650 went to Democrats, with these top recipients: $4,000 to Sen. Harry Reid (D.-Nev.), $3,000 to Rep. Gabrielle Gifford (D.-Ariz.) and $2,900 Sen. Barbara Boxer (D.-Calif.).

The congressman was not forgotten either. The SunPower PAC remembered him with $500 for his 2010 campaign. While SunPower was a financial partner in the congressman's reelection campaign, it straight-out hired his son.

Miller the Younger is not registered to lobby in Washington, but he is a member of its bar. He is not a member of the California bar, home of his lobbying firm, Lang, Hansen, O'Malley and Miller (LHOM), of which he is a founding partner.

According the firm's website LHOM specializes in providing advice to clients on larger macro political issues trends. “Utilizing our broad experience in California and Washington, D.C., we can furnish 'big picture' analysis of developing political and policy trends which may affect client interests and goals.”

What does Miller the Younger bring? Read here: “George Miller brings a lifetime of friendships, relationships, and contacts together with over 15 years of front-line advocacy experience. He’s an attorney with expertise that ranges from insurance and banking to transportation, taxation and gaming law,” according to the website. “Unlike most advocates, George is at ease working both the corridors of Sacramento power or the halls of Congress.”

What is the stated purpose of the SunPower’s DOE 1705 program loan guarantee?

SunPower has different lines of business. In addition to manufacturing solar panel and roof tiles, it builds solar panel ranches, which it then sells off, but retains the services contract.

The loan guarantee is earmarked for the job numbers for the California Valley Solar Ranch (CVSR) in San Luis Obispo County, which it has already sold to NRG Solar, but will continue to maintain.

According to the Department of Energy (DOE) website, the CVSR project will create 350 construction jobs during the two-year build and 15 permanent jobs—presumably those are the squeegee men for keeping the panels clean.

If $80 million per permanent job seems a little high, even for the current Obama administration, you are correct. In addition to the 350 construction jobs and the 15 squeegee men, there will an as-yet-undetermined number of jobs created building the panels for the CVSR—in Mexicali, Mexico.

The company is looking for a facility of up to 320,000 square feet, where it will build three different solar panel models and its solar roof tiles, according the company’s Aug. 5 statement.

Marty T. Neese, the company's chief

Capitol Hill powerbroker Rep. George Miller (D.-Calif.), center, hosted Interior Sec. Kenneth L. Salazar, left, on an Oct. 14, 2010 tour of SunPower's Richmond, Calif., plant. During the tour, Salazar said plants like SunPower's transform renewable energy ideas into reality. One month later, the company announced it had restated its 2008 and operating officer, said, “Establishing our own manufacturing facility in Mexicali means we will be positioned to quickly deliver our high-efficiency, high-reliability solar products to a growing North American solar market.”

2009 financial filings to correct for unsubstantiated accounting entries.

[DOI photo by Tami Heilemann]

Mexicali Mayor Francisco Perez Tejada Padilla said he was thrilled. “Mexicali is rapidly becoming an industrial hub for high-tech companies, offering an educated workforce and a growing manufacturing area,” he said. “We welcome SunPower to our city and are pleased that they have chosen Mexicali to establish its solar panel manufacturing facility.”

The good news for Mexican jobs seekers did not affect the DOE's loan guarantee to SunPower. Hours before the DOE 1705 loan program expired at the end of Fiscal Year 2011 on Sept. 30, the $1.2 billion in loan guarantees was approved for the company.

Insiders get liquid through for $1.4 billion friendly buyout from France.

If that timing seems odd to you, consider the time line of company events around when the loan was announced April 12: just two weeks before France's Total Oil (TOT-NYSE) launched its friendly takeover.

The deal, made public April 28, was in effect a 60% buyout at $23.25, then a 60% premium over the stock's trading price, which allowed insiders to get liquid.

SunPower CEO Werner is typical of the insiders. On May 24 he exercised his right to purchase 428,343 shares at $3.30 per share, a $18 discount from the day's trading range. He sold 478,084 shares June 15, the day the Total Oil takeover closed, at $23.25 for proceeds of $11,115,453.

Remember, Total Oil was offering at $23.25 per share in what was in effect a private sale. The SPWR, Class A or B, shares have not traded above $23 since June 10, 2010.

SunPower is a company in trouble.

In his Sept. 26 column for SeekingAlpha.com, Stoyan Elitzen lists SunPower as the ninth-most-shorted solar stock in either the New York Stock Exchange or NASDAQ markets. Short sellers are betting that a stock price will go down, as opposed to those who buy long, who expect a stock price to up.

According the Elitzen, the size of SunPower's short position is equal to 15 days of its average daily volume of 725,000 shares per day. By any measure, such pessimism is a banshee screaming in the night for a company's stock price that has already lost 94% of value from its 2007 apex.

Although its stock has recovered from its all-time low Oct. 4 of $6.60 per share to trade between $8 and $9 per share, it has been a steep slide from its all-time high Dec. 3, 2007 of $133. Then, the company was worth $13 billion.

Today, its market capitalization is $800 million, just short of its debt of $820 million, according to the company's July filings for the second quarter.

The Oct. 4 sell-off, which gave shareholders a 12% haircut, was triggered by the company's Oct. 3 aftermarket statement announcing the company was paying down its $50 million credit line with a consortium of European banks and opening a new $200 million credit line with Deutsche Bank.

According to the statement, Dennis V. Arriola, the company's chief financial officer said the new credit line will improve the company's ability to operate.

“However, the challenging market conditions continue to impact our global residential and commercial business. As a result, we will revise our 2011 revenue and earnings outlook on our third-quarter earnings conference call to be held on Nov. 3,” he said.

As much as Arriola's negative guidance shook up the markets, it also reflects a lesson learned.

In addition to all its other challenges, the company and its officers are defendants in a federal shareholder lawsuit, whose plaintiffs include, the Austin (Texas) Police Retirement System, the Arkansas Teachers Retirement System and a number of institutional investors for an alleged scheme to deceive the investing public by making false statements contrary to nonpublic information known to the insiders.

The allegations cover the period between April 17, 2008, to Nov. 16, 2009, the day the company announced that it had discovered unsubstantiated accounting entries to its operations in the Philippines, which led to the significant restating of the company's financials.

There are a number of lawsuits filed in California courts relating to the same period alleging gross mismanagement, breach of fiduciary responsibility, unjust enrichment and abuse of control.

The first of the lawsuits was filed Nov. 18, 2009, and they have yet to be resolved.

It is a fair question to ask how a company with such serious charges lodged against its management team could receive a $1.2 billion loan guarantee from the taxpayers, so it could built a new manufacturing plant in Mexico to build the solar panels it will install at a photovoltaic ranch that will create a total of 15 permanent jobs.

Certainly, the time is right for Miller and Miller to clarify their roles in this mess.

Neil W. McCabe is the editor of Guns & Patriots. McCabe, an Army reservist, has mobilized twice, first as combat historian in Iraq and then as a photojournalist at Fort Bragg, N.C.. Before his call to active-duty, he was a reporter and photographer at "The Pilot," Boston's Catholic newspaper and Cardinal O'Malley's blog for seven years.

Sponsored Content

Reader Comments: (298)

Welcome to our comments section! In addition to requiring readers to register - which we trust will not be too much of an imposition - we will also be moderating comments 24/7. This will allow us to ensure that users stay on topic and treat each other with respect. Who knows, we may even produce a new product that features you our loyal audience. Let us know what you think.

Like  and 26 others liked this.

Showing 80 of 298 comments

Sort by Popular now   Subscribe by email  Subscribe by RSS

Diego Roswell 1 day ago

Apparently, this president and his corrupt administration, after bankrupting the nation, starting wars in Libya and now Pakistan, accepting donations from the worst of the worst Wall Street offenders, deliberately selling US weapons to Mexican drug dealers that get US Border agents killed, blames others for his actions, giving taxpayer money to select companies, none of this is noticed by the morons that continue to support the man. Ideology is more stubborn in these people than a tick on a mule deer.

468 people liked this.

Lance Brown 23 hours ago in reply to Diego Roswell

REVOLUTION IS NIGH. THEY ARE DESTROYING OUR COUNTRY.

170 people liked this.

joedoakes202 23 hours ago in reply to Lance Brown

Keep Calm and Carry On . . .

August 29, 2011

Dear President Obama,

In the interest of history let's do a little sum up thus far. You "wrote" a book. Confessed your transgressions. Promised your fellow citizens that nebulous concepts such as "hope" and "change" would enable them to find fulfillment in their life via the federal government. You left out that the finances of the federal government are built on various cons and scams that would not even pass the most rudimentary of financial reviews. You started a war on Libya. Admittedly, I'm for this, though not in the manner upon which you are doing it. You sacrificed Egypt to tomorrows enemy. You signed the most unpopular piece of legislation since Prohibition in the form of "Obamacare." Without one Republican vote. You blew various moments of core principles, like siding with Nancy Pelosi as she attacked the CIA, and calling a cop a racist albeit in a veiled manner. Let's not leave out the massive spending on some of the most insane things I can conceive of while not providing money for those things that the federal government has a vital role in doing, because if you did, you would lose more of your liberal support. Soon you are going to be advancing a "jobs plan," do I need to mention what happens to businesses that you appear at?

As I drove through "Irene" the saying "Keep Calm and Carry On" came to my mind. It is high time that the citizens of this nation realize that there own safety and security in no small way rests on the personal choices that they decide to make, and no longer allow themselves to be conned and scammed by people like Al Gore telling them that the world is coming to an end if they do not plug their rectums with a mercury filled light bulb. Or that one thing or another is going to kill them. Something is going to kill all of us. I don't much see the point in making society a basket case trying to stop it while not enjoying our lives and pursuing our American dreams, of course within some semblance of reason, but in the end, no matter which one of us buys the farm. The show must go on. Real Americans know this. There has to come a moment when the tones of liberal politicians singing the tune of victimization, fear, and race baiting fall on deaf ears. Considering what liberals tend to do to those people while promising to do something far different is criminal. How could you steal a mans dignity and then ask him to vote for you?

In the midst of this I have at times shouted into the wind in an effort to persuade other free citizens to stick together, and not permit you and those of your ilk, to divide us in your usual manner via race and economic class. You see Mr. Obama your way is the easy way. Your way requires little thought and only marginal effort. I, "We The People," have a much tougher job. We must persuade our fellow citizens that being free is our most important goal, and that your philosophy is it's greatest threat. That is why I keep calm and carry on in a relentless fashion as I steer my life through a nation that is being so poorly led, I know of no other way to preserve this nation from tyranny.

On November 6, 2012 we will make one great stride in attaining that goal.

Respectfully,

Joe Doakes

503 people liked this. Like Reply

dennis1960 19 hours ago in reply to joedoakes202

Bravo and well said.

72 people liked this. Like Reply

tom Oconomowoc 16 hours ago in reply to joedoakes202

wow great write up

39 people liked this. Like Reply

larenzo007 11 hours ago in reply to joedoakes202

Joe; your my hero buddy! I find great wisdom in your comments though thought your discussion on ObamaCare deserved a little more reflection on the political consternations and gymnastics to unlawfully pass a bill that the American People clearly did not want, and that did not address the underlying fundamental costs savings and efficiencies that our government claimed were the reason for passage. When Pelosi touted the passed program as the next best thing to the 70 year old, unsustainable Social Security program, I knew our prospects for the future were certainly dimming.

We need to do better in our next election. McCain was a tired old warrior and the last election turned from anti-war to economics in an instant, and McCain wasn't the guy to work that discussion. Huckabee screwed us by staying in too long, and I blame him for where we are today.

Four years later we are still at war in the middle east, and expanded that fight to support the interests of others. A far cry from Mr. O's pledge to bring our troops home. Unemployment and economics; we got what we deserved in electing a community organizer with no credentials. Every choice has been the wrong one.

I have to admit that Washington is disfunctional and just not working properly for its citizenry. A system that rewards politians for bringing the bacon home, and shifting tax revenues with local pork barrel projects just isn't in line with the ethics of our roots, nor a system that can be easily fixed. While with it's problems and stigma, the tea party has brought a different conversation to the forefront regarding the true role and expense for government in our lives.

I'm not sure I know the answers, but the key one is certainly an administration that does not include Mr. O and is more business friendly. Community organizers and government don't create jobs. Businesses do. Let's not chastise them and business onwers. Let's give them incentives and get real jobs moving again.

The stage at the GOP debates have a full cast of characters and themes. I hope the themes drive our discussions on job creation, taxation and the real role of government. I'm not sure about some of the players in the GOP, but know for sure that anyone is a step up from where we are today.

I do so much want to leave my kids in a better spot than this. I get it. Our citizenry and Unions have evaded the obvious that a global economy has picked our pocket and will take from our standard of living today and into the future. We were first to the show in the industrial revolution and have dominated the scene into the new milenium. It's been a nice run, but the cracks in the foundation are getting too obvious. We've made promises on pensions, on social security on medical costs that can't be kept. The more we avoid that, the more we defer the pain from our population to our kids. The conversation about class warefare, about the 99% v. the 1% is an easy, relatable conversations. It does sidestep issues of the creators of jobs, and the 47% of americans that do not pay taxes nor have skin in the game. The real battle however, is brewing between those who have or are close to vesting in benefits and past promises and those who will pay the freight for miscalculations and political mal-practice.

It is the perfect storm. Politians that have no reason to be the bearer of bad news or the engineers of change. An active elderly voter that rightfully want their priece of prosperity, and hopes to avoid changing circumstances, demographics, economics, whatever...the business guy, whose over-regulated, perhaps over-taxed, and trying to make a couple bucks while keeping his key employee group intact, the middle class, shrinking as it has, trying to pay their mortgages and send their kids to college. and the cook, bottle-washer, Nanny, trash-collector, teacher. dollarstore cashier....I could go on.....

I'm embarrassed that folks won't see realities. We've tapped out the credit card and we're behind on the mortgage. A new reality is apou us, no matter where age or station of life. My heart was warmed with how the USA came together after 9/11, and remain sickened by the politics of the day in the aftermath.

There's some tough and difficukt decisions ahead. I am hoping real leadership exists to help us address the descionce of the day.

22 people liked this.

joedoakes202 2 hours ago in reply to larenzo007

Hang in there, we are Americans!!!

To The Editor:

Response to Mr. XXXXXX Column:

The Great Depression did not end as a result of government largess; the Great Depression ended because the US went to war, and in so doing annihilated the enemies ability to produce goods, and thus wage war. By the wars end the only country with any manufacturing capacity was the good old USA. Admittedly, FDR's policies might well have saved this nation from further erosion, but the birth of entitlement programs of that era, and those that followed, will in the next three decades combined with the interest on our debt, completely drain the productive resources of our nation. That is, our entire federal budget will be equal to those financial promises, and if the next forty-seven months of this administration are anything like the first one - those promises will buy me a cup of coffee, and a doughnut when I begin to rely on them.

As far as your apparent animus toward Republicans for trying to be, at long last, responsible with the funny money that is the American dollar; the toughest part of any fight is not deciding to do the right thing - it is doing it. Under Minority Whip Cantor the Republican party demonstrated that it is prepared to, at long last, stand for fiscal responsibility. Seven Democrats stood with Republicans on the last "stimulus" vote. While I do not have the responsibility of being director of any part of the Republican party; I am a registered Republican. My party provided the leadership, Abraham Lincoln, that preserved the Union and ended slavery. My party provided the leadership, Ronald W. Reagan, that pulled the United States, and the rest of the world out of the malaise of the 70's. I'm proud of the Republican party and the spine it is showing against this self-destructive economic philosophy.

In so far as your assertion that the stimulus bill will create millions of jobs and provide for various forms of alternative energy. Sometimes when it snows I hire my teenage neighbor to shovel; my neighbor is a smart hardworking fellow, he once revealed he is saving it for college. Why? He wants to grow economically, maybe he will decide to sacrifice present wants for a matter of years and realize the goal of coming back to XXXXXXX and raise a family - as I have. That is real job creation; make work projects do not create communities, they destroy them. As for alternative energy, there is only one, nuclear power. At present not one reactor is under construction in the entire United States. All other forms of alternative energy even if we max them out - wind, solar, geothermal, and biomass - do not have the horsepower to do the job. Even if they did we cannot transport enough power from those areas that create it to those that will consume it.

The only way out of our current situation is to determine what is absolutely necessary and to use the organs of the federal government to fix the damage it caused, and take the rest, and throw it away. In doing that we will end the constant cycle that creates one crises after another. In doing this we will be able to rebuild our banks, our military, our communities, and fund restructured entitlement programs via a vibrant and growing economy. Building modern nuclear power plants, using that clean power to convert domestically produced coal to domestically produced liquid fuel; and continue to support applied science to research solar panel technology to shrink the cost of production, and increase its capacity to generate power and batteries to store it on cloudy days.

I did not live through the great depression, and I am sorry you had to - I did however, with the help of my older sister, survive a violent alcoholic mother who thought the world owed her something - she was right, but it wasn't a roof, or a drink - and it certainly wasn't something a five year old or an eight year old could deliver. There are "eight million stories in the naked city" mine is no worse nor any better than anyones - it is just different. I survived that abuse, I and you, will survive this abuse. Betting against America or an American (especially me) is always a bad bet; especially when our collective back is against a wall. We did it before and we will do it again, I have not a single doubt in my mind as to our ability to overcome this manufactured fiscal disaster or any other for that matter, real or imagined. We know that when we harness everyday wisdom, and apply it to seemingly complex situations we solve them. Since this Nation's founding we have overcome every single challenge that has been placed in our way - we innovate, we compete, we overcome. And at times go to war to restore the peace or our liberty, and families all across America bear the raw cost of those battles - including mine.

In fact, I think this nightmare will be fertile ground for any politician, Democrat or Republican, to advocate for fiscal soundness, insurmountable national defense, restructured entitlement programs, and individual State control of the rest. Sir, politics ought not to be about who wins and who loses, or what party prevails, it ought to be about who can best articulate, and promote our shared values, and principles and in doing that lift all citizens up, not a few at the expense of the other. Remember, as President Reagan said, "If we lower our standards we lower the flag." I say we put the shovels away and grab a bull dozer and a half track and get to work. I say we take our eyes off the politicians and put them back on the business leaders, the engineers, the scientists and the service members who preserve this great country, and all those men and women that make this country move everyday without so much as a thank you. This is where our attention should be, this is where our hope will turn to reality, this is where change will hone the granite that is the impenetrable American spirit.

2 people liked this.

Rattlerjake 13 hours ago in reply to joedoakes202

Might be well said, but it is more useless talk. Do you really think that the 2012 election will do anything? NOT! It won't matter whether a liberal or conservative secures the office, our country is already too far gone. I will not believe that we as Americans are reversing this catastrophe until I see Obuthead prosecuted and in jail for fraud and theft as a minimum, and if it fails to happen we have no further hope as a country. Additionally, we as Americans need to force the enforcement of our immigration law, as well as strengthening it to equal Alabama's new law, or there is no hope. And lastly, the IRS needs to be abolished and the FAIRTAX system put in place or we will never have the prosperous country that so many before us have fought and died for. Cain's 9-9-9 is not the answer, as it still doesn't tax everyone equally; there are too many in this country that receive an income "under the table" that would not be paying their fair share. It's time to organize for the war is soon at hand.

13 people liked this.

tonilaura 21 hours ago in reply to Lance Brown

That's your answer?

4 people liked this.

Like

Reply

tonilaura 21 hours ago in reply to Diego Roswell

Hey, let us give credit where credit is due. Certain Congress personnel have had a very big hand in the road to disaster. So, now, are we going to really work at changing direction or just whine about it? Everywhere I look, every thing I read tells me that people are angry, worried, suspicious but not to the point of dumping the impediments. For example, Charlie Rangel, he is what 80 years old, been in Congress forty years and still is so bias he trips over his own shoes. WE have allow Professor/President Obama to run rough shod over us. WE allowed Mrs. Pelosi to force the passage of the health Bill so "we could understand it". WE allow jobs to go over seas and buy the returning products. WE are responsible for the actions of our employees. Since these employees ignore their job descriptions, let us get rid of them. VOTE them out.

www.tonisopinions.com

129 people liked this.

Like

Reply

Tommy Moran 19 hours ago in reply to tonilaura

You are correct that some congressional people had hands in what has happened. However, just voting them out is only part of the solution. We must have TERM LIMITS!!! Our forefarthers did not intend for those jobs to be careers as many have made them. Move both the house and senate to 4 year terms with a limit of 2 terms. Then they can do what they are elected to do and stop running for office.

85 people liked this.

Like

Reply

wood 14 hours ago in reply to tonilaura

"Vote them out"?? That's a solution?

We need to get a better handle on wrong doing and corruption than merely "Voting them out". These people have ruined probably more lives that any USA resident could even say "Hello" to during the remaining 15 months of the remaining Obama administration, even if he started immediately. Face up to these criminals and get some idea of what this welfare/warfare state is turning into because these transgressions are only steps toward a disastrous future for all except the politically rich.

13 people liked this.

Like

Reply

lorenzo01 18 hours ago in reply to tonilaura

the congress was held by the dems for osamas first two years and they only past the pet projects of their old friends?buisness partners ?family? the washington royalty needs changing we need to reinstate term limits. and use the conpiring with the enemys act

whenever we catch them.selling secrets like ge did or even sending american jobs oversees or a polition making one single dollar off their legisllation like mr. and mrs pololsi/boxer//obama /busch/ chenygore/shoot busches granddaddy prescot sold steel to HITTLER from his steelmills he ran while he worked for rockefeller EVERYTHING traces back to the for profit priavately owned non-federal reserve banks and futher the non-fed bankers and the same ran IMF must be shut down before they economically nuke us to force us to submit to our savior banks they have been saving us since the first savings and loan scam in the 70s .the presidents are only puppets now go to your reginal non fed bank today , get out of their dollars

12 people liked this.

stopthmadnessIII 22 hours ago in reply to Diego Roswell

Why do we insist on blaming the president - it is congressmen who do not have term limits - it is congress who passed this bill and it is Congress who benefited from it. Stop your "hero" obsession. Obama sucks, yeah we get it. Pay attention. Its Congress that is screwing up the country, not some idiot that is office for 8 years at most. George Miller III has been in Congress since 1975!!!! WAKE UP AMERICA!!! Stop obsessing over the fender-bender to your car - your House (pun intended) is getting robbed.

79 people liked this.

james coyle 19 hours ago in reply to stopthmadnessIII to stopthmadness we conservative have the congress nothing else, for now that is semi enough zer0 has to go holder has to go (preferrably to prison)the totus promised to work with the minority party and then san fran nan and worthless harry reid literally locked the doors to their private meetings while shoving healthcare DEform up our butts. paid a political price in 2010 and now seeing a bigger defeat looming in 2012 are schemeing to "postpone" aka cancel elections. (dick) holder flagrantly lies to congress and gets a pass but they're looking to bring roger clemens back to persecute, here's a question for all why was he even there in the first place? on a scale of 1-10 in importance to our nation, it scores about a minus 100. yeah alot of repubs suck but there are some good ones the number of dims that don't suck is 0. oBlamer went from winning 58% of the independent voters to 41% now he'll lose to anyone we nominate by a lot. He'd lose to elmer fudd or goofy, both of whom would be an improvement. if zer0 and his minions try to cancel elections next year there will be a revolt that they can't imagine. tarring and feathering seems appropriate or just life sentences

32 people liked this.

Rattlerjake 13 hours ago in reply to james coyle

To Hell with life sentences! These people who seek to destroy our country from within need to be executed. Americans have become sympathetic, soft-asses, so worried about accidentally executing the wrong person. And all of these politicians that have aided and abetted the criminal-in-chief should be hung right along side of him, and ALL of their assets confiscated and returned to the treasury, f**k their families! And starting with 2012 we need to stop voting lawyers into political offices, they are the number one problem in this country's government.

13 people liked this.

EdinNola 16 hours ago in reply to stopthemadnessIII

You are somewhat right, however at no time in the history of this country has so much actual financial and Constitutional damage been accomplished. Forget about the FACT that it has been accomplished in less that three years.

Perhaps this is Obama's answer to the Constitutional requirement that he protect our borders. The Illegal Mexicans might go home to work in this new factory to make all the solar panels. This guy is disgusting.

21 people liked this.

Mike 11 hours ago in reply to stopthemadnessIII

In all fairness it was a democratic Congress that pushed the POTUS agenda. He IS a large part of the problem, if you don't see this then you are truly blind. And yes Congress does control spending so people need to vote out the corrupt spenders. But it seems half the country does not understand this.

6 people liked this.

H2ODog 17 hours ago in reply to Diego Roswell

Obama has neither real life experience nor relevant education to enable him to successfully lead his administration, many of whom are just as ignorant and experience deficient as he is. Hence, the greatest nation in the world is fundamentally leaderless, and all the useless idiots surrounding "the one" are doing the only thing they know to do, namely stuffing their own pockets and the pockets of their cronies with as many tax dollars as they can divert. Impeachment, anyone?

34 people liked this.

JohnWIS 1 day ago

Hmm.

The government collects taxes, and gives $1.2 billion to a company in order to prop it up, because it cannot sustain itself on its own.

The taxpayer doesn't have any say in the process.....but is told that we must pay our taxes, otherwise they will sick the I.R.S. after us, and threaten us with loss of property, finances, etc., and make our lives a living hell...including possible prison time.

If the taxpayer complains.....they are deemed "unpatriotic".

If the taxpayer refuses.....they are deemed a threat.

If the taxpayer complies without complaint or refusal.....those who impose the tax upon us simply smile and say "sheep!"

The debt is placed upon us a burden.....against our will....and those in power, sleep at night without losing a wink.

392 people liked this.

Tom Seim 23 hours ago in reply to JohnWIS

You forgot about the part where the company makes campaign donations to the government in order to get favored attention, and hires congressional relatives (nepotism) to get even more favored attention.

163 people liked this.

JohnWIS 13 hours ago in reply to Tom Seim

Your right.

They sure do enjoy themselves on our dime.....don't they?

8 people liked this.

Charles Darling 13 hours ago in reply to JohnWIS

So can we divide this "bad debt" by the # of taxpayers and each deduct our share next year ? :-)

6 people liked this.

joedoakes202 1 day ago

October 3, 2011

Making you unemployed . . .

Dear El Presidente Obama,

So, just so we are clear, we can't whack a guy that murders his fellow service members in cold blood and is a muslim, nor can we whack the son of a Pakistani military officer for attempting to bomb Times Square, nor can we apparently whack Gadaffi for, well, being an all around bad guy - but we can whack a guy who gets up on his soap box and advocates for the muslimification and consequently the destruction of The United States of America. Don't get me wrong Mr. Obama, I'm all for it, I'm just wondering why we are being so inconsistent in all of this? Is it possible you and the political class have decided which muslims to fight for without telling the American people? Again I'm all for it, one way or the other, but what if by some insane circumstance that Ron Paul does become President and gives that order to retreat - that's an awful lot of blood that is going to be running in the Arab Street.

Enough with the happy talk:) Can you explain to me how you get your core supporters to protest banks while you line your pockets with their money? That's a skill I lack. Not one I ever want to learn. You do realize that most Americans know by now that all of that TARP/TALF and "stimulus" money all of you pushed for ended up in some strippers g-string? At least those strippers earned it. All you have to do is blow air past you larynx all the while being fully clothed. I'd say you've got the easier deal buddy. Maybe you can invest in another solar company and launder a few more bucks that way? Or you could run more guns into Mexico? You've already released the documents that demonstrate that communication was ongoing between The White House and the departments involved in the operation known as "fast and furious." What idiot came up with that name? If you get impeached over this, when they make the movie, will they be using your Canadian built bus, because I'm not sure that has enough torque to get the job done.

Finally, the nonexistent "jobs bill," that is only concerned with saving one persons job. Yours. This bill is being shredded by Democrats for one simple purpose - to save their jobs. Which I've noticed that they are losing at an increasingly alarming rate. Socializing, if not Communizing, a once free nation isn't just expensive economically, it is also expensive politically. What did all of you think would happen when you enslaved doctors and destroyed the patient doctor relationship on the alter of Big Government? We would all just sit quietly and take it? No dice. One more election to go. Then your going to join the rest of us on the unemployment line, it's about time you feel like what it is like to lose your job. There is justice and fairness in that, many of those who once voted for you are becoming more and more aware of that with each passing day; I long for the day when the "black vote" votes for freedom and opportunity and no longer submits itself to being enslaved by ignorance of their liberal slave owners.

On November 6, 2012 I hope they join us to break those chains once again.

Respectfully,

Joe Doakes

267 people liked this.

Rattlerjake 12 hours ago in reply to joedoakes202

Sorry Joe, but your last comment about black votes is wishful thinking. Blacks are no more awake today than they have ever been . Obuthhead is their mentor, he can do no wrong, they will vote for him regardless, and to believe otherwise is fruitless. Remember, even though he has caused a higher job loss than ever in this country's history, he rewards them with increased unemployment benefits, welfare, free heathcare, and other entitlements that the average low income white doesn't qualify for; it's a fact.

6 people liked this.

lonestarlady 1 day ago

Obama owes the Eco-Freaks who donated to his campaign, he doesn't care about us taxpayers or how much of our money he squanders. Obama must go in 2012 even if we have to march on DC and throw him out personally!

232 people liked this. Like Reply

None None 22 hours ago in reply to lonestarlady

Count me in!

34 people liked this. Like Reply

CPA60462 1 day ago

Whale oil is the renewable fuel of the future. All I need is a $1.2 billion federal loan guarantee so that I can buy some whales (and cover my modest employment costs) . To keep costs down I plan on feeding them the 1/2 portion of fries that will no longer be served with McDonald's Happy Meals, which should have the added benefit of causing the whales pack on the pounds at a rapid pace. Now if I can just keep PETA from finding out.

178 people liked this. Like Reply

RufusVonDufus 23 hours ago in reply to CPA60462

You are going to have to kick a fourth of it back to Obama's campaign in some illegal way.

107 people liked this. Like Reply

Mactec 23 hours ago in reply to CPA60462

Michele has already beat you to the Happy Meal Fries.

88 people liked this. Like Reply

Ralphie85 1 day ago in reply to CPA60462

Very funny stuff!!! I will be your lobbyist, I could use a few "easy" bucks these days!!!

55 people liked this. Like Reply

M R 23 hours ago in reply to CPA60462

I happen to know a few "down on their luck" whales. For a modest finders fee I would be glad to send them your way. After all it is all "free" money right?

52 people liked this.

landof10000 22 hours ago in reply to CPA60462

Priceless!

14 people liked this.

Rattlerjake 12 hours ago in reply to CPA60462

You're absolutely right! Most of these whales already are funded by the government and feed exclusively at Micky D's. But the money could be used to set up liposuction clinics in every city to harvest the crude fatty fuel. Then we can build Obama motors and produce the Doctor Emmett Brown DeLorean (first edition that burns garbage and waste), and we'll no longer be dependent on foreign oil.

5 people liked this.

Maximus_Legitimus 1 day ago

This story encapsulates the entire nature of the obama administration

185 people liked this.

None None 22 hours ago in reply to Maximus\_Legitimus

This administration has given a whole new meaning to the word CORRUPTION!

57 people liked this.

DeepWheat 18 hours ago in reply to Maximus\_Legitimus

CØRRUPT
INCØMPETENT
SØCIALIST
TØTALITARIAN
SNØB

SØ far, he sucks!

GTFØ -- JAN 21, 2013

"Cogito, ergo TEA Party!" ~ DeepWheat

17 people liked this. Like Reply

A_Proud_Infidel 1 day ago

More of the same insane corruption, this is just what we need, another Solyndra.

161 people liked this. Like Reply

ProudToBeAnAmerican1776 23 hours ago in reply to A\_Proud\_Infidel

No we do not need another Solyndra, we need to get every elected or appointed official who is associated with these schemes away from our money.

(Yes I know you were being sarcastic)

73 people liked this. Like Reply

typicalwhiteguy 14 hours ago in reply to ProudToBeAnAmerican1776

Not only should we get these crooks away from our money; we should put every damned one of them in prison for at least one life term and seize all of their personal and commercial assets, from Obama on down, like we did with Bernie Madoff.

8 people liked this. Like Reply

returnoffreedom 19 hours ago in reply to A\_Proud\_Infidel

That would be Solyndra times three! And Rahm Emanuel casually says that it's pure venture capital, sometimes you win and sometimes you lose! Apparently he missed the distinction that in this case it's risking taxpayer money and NOT private investment money.

22 people liked this. Like Reply

Out_sourced 1 day ago

What's really scary is the things we haven't been found out about yet, what we know already about this corrupt administration is scary enough but just imagine what we don't know that goes on. Scary times in this country and it only looks to get worse and as long as dipstick is in office.

148 people liked this. Like Reply

RufusVonDufus 23 hours ago in reply to Out\_sourced

What we know so far about the criminality of this administration is but a scratch on the surface! It is going to get much worse. Obama is going to do everything and anything he has to do in order to get reelected and that includes buying and lying.

102 people liked this.

None None 22 hours ago in reply to RufusVonDufus

He only lies when his mouth is open. Come to think of it, I have never seen it closed.

27 people liked this.

renojmc 22 hours ago in reply to Out\_sourced

Agreed. Can imagine what Owebama will do once he becomes a lame duck president? In the case of an election defeat in 2012, he'll have two and a half months to wreak havoc on our country. He'll be furious over his loss and will have no reason to not issue executive orders left and right in an attempt to implement his delusional agenda.

Perhaps even more scary is the 4 years he'd have if he did win in 2012.

God help us.

37 people liked this.

None None 22 hours ago in reply to renojmc

The thought of four more years with O'Blamer (and possibly Hillary on the ticket) just made me throw up on my keyboard.

25 people liked this.

drivingfast001 23 hours ago

Remove the stench of corrupt BO in 2012. Vote every Demoncrap out of office!!

100 people liked this.

None None 22 hours ago in reply to drivingfast001

When we throw them out, we will have to fumigate the White House and count all the silver.

29 people liked this.

wood 13 hours ago in reply to drivingfast001

The corruption is not a demo/repub thing. It is a political system that is rotten to the core.

Voting is not a solution. If it was, the USA would be a prefect country. Seems that the size is the primary problem because the size allows the corruption to be lost in the noise. Seems that the "Dump D.C." people have it right!

4 people liked this.

globalcrap 1 day ago

When will justice be served ?How much more of these socialist crooks can America endure ?Where are the honest demacrats, and republicans .Why aren't they outraged about all the tax payers money being wasted by these crooks.? When will be justice be served ?

108 people liked this.

Phillip Waller 23 hours ago in reply to globalcrap justice will only be served, when you vote with your eyes open, rather than with eyes closed...praying for "Hohey/Changey." Yes, we need a leader. Yes, we need a new direction. No. It will not come from on high. We must take back our government at the local level. We must demand control to be as local as possible. Turn off MSNBC and roll up your sleeves in your own neighborhoods. Gather like-minded neighbors and make your community what you wish.

57 people liked this.

None None 22 hours ago in reply to globalcrap

Honest and democrat should not be used in the same sentence!

29 people liked this.

globalcrap 21 hours ago in reply to None None

I thought it would give them a lift, and make them feel good about themselves being called honest.

6 people liked this.

Dan Heinzel 14 hours ago in reply to globalcrap

You know, there is at least one man in congress that isn't a crook. He's also running for president. But because he's not a crook and bought out like other politicians, the media labels him as unelectable and a crazy old man. He's a threat to the current way politics work. Instead of believing what you hear on the television (as it is disgustingly twisted with tiny out of context sound bites, rephrases, etc.), I suggest reading up here (<http://www.ronpaul2012.com/the...> with an open mind. Try thinking of yourself in the other person's shoes, and see what you would want to do in a similar situation. Then would this actually work? Yes, some of the ideas are radical compared to society today. I don't agree with all of them, but I agree with enough - especially the big ticket items. But realize he also is looking for a gradual transition that will make it as painless to we the people that have become so dependent on the horrible way things are. He understands that the system has screwed us over, and for 30 years he was the lone voice trying to stop it. There are MANY flat out LIES being floated around, and you need to decipher the truth from the lies - some are on purpose to knock him down, and some are from the passionate ignorant and/or deceived. I don't mind criticisms - I have some myself. But lies?

There is a reason all his supporters are very ardent and will vote for him whether he is on the ballot or not. It all comes down to your stated frustrations and knowledge. Knowledge is power, and we have the internet to spread that knowledge where nobody can stop us (yet). The difficult part is getting the typical person to truly open their eyes and think for themselves instead of believing everything they hear or read. Every decision ultimately comes down to the individual making their own choices. I'm just sick of seeing so many people be so easily manipulated (as I try and manipulate everyone who reads this, but at least its to read up and make your OWN decision as I believe it will overlap with mine...) to maintain the status quo of us voting in things for necessary quick gains that really screw us over soon afterwards for years to come. Democrats tout welfare will financially save us, the ever-expanding poor, when it robs us, and republicans say lets kill the bad guys before they can kill us, but die in the process. Then for every bad guy we kill, 10 people get angry we killed that person and attack us the most effective way they can, suicide bombing. +1 us, + 25 them, and we are fighting to protect the good people that we turn into bad people. How long until the suicide bombings start happening on our soil instead of theirs? How long do you think it will be until we (un)officially invade Iran? or Syria? I feel like the articles I read show us bounding closer every day. They're just looking for an excuse. Both political sides will destroy we the people, and the elite will grow richer and us poorer.

And as a complete side note more towards the article than the comment, being a PhD student researching photovoltaics, this makes me absolutely sick. Their stealing from our meager amount of $ to prop up my future industry is only going to encourage the industry crashing by the time I get in the real world when all these unsound businesses crash. Not to mention I also got a call asking for donations to drill new oil wells today and it would be a tax write-off. They've been giving big oil bats to bust our knee caps and then give us crutches to limp along until we fall over. They should just stop ALL the subsidies and level the playing field for everyone.

5 people liked this.

wood 13 hours ago in reply to Dan Heinzel

Hear, hear, Dan; you've got the correct analyses of the situation.

Yes, I think that this so called "crazy old man" is one of the few potential solutions to this over developed nation. Of course, I figure that he's still a young guy as he's about 10 years younger than I am. But he's a lot more mature than the childlike people in the administration as well as the voters who are still are searching for the collective "free ride".

5 people liked this.

arizuella 13 hours ago in reply to wood

Agreed. his ideas are steadfast and at least he could curb some of the BS.

1 person liked this. Like Reply

wodiej 1 day ago

Another scandal but will anyone have the guts to do anything about it? Gov. Sarah Palin likely will be once again the only person in the room to call it out.

109 people liked this. Like Reply

Keith1941 1 day ago in reply to wodiej

Maybe we need more Tea Parties, but that won't work. The Tea Partiers are too busy working to support the orgy participants across the nation.

When the dust settles, the Bolsheviks will take over these "gatherings" in our cities. History does repeat itself...just like October, 1917, Russia.

20 people liked this. Like Reply

SurfinUSA 23 hours ago in reply to Keith1941

"The Tea Partiers are too busy working to support the orgy participants across the nation."

What kind of twisted comment is that about? You maggot infested hacky sack players can dream of Lenin all you want, but we'll squash you like bugs on a windshield before you infest us any further.

It's time for parasites like you to be lit up with lighter fluid.

57 people liked this. Like Reply

datameister 23 hours ago in reply to SurfinUSA

You are on a roll today. Light 'em up.

16 people liked this. Like Reply

SurfinUSA 9 hours ago in reply to datameister

I get stuffed full of Godfather's Pizzas and something overwhelms me and puts me in front of the monitor.

Like Reply

Bruce Allan 23 hours ago in reply to Keith1941

Stuff it, leftist - your orgies at the "Occupy" aren't doing ANYTHING against the real theft - right there in the oval office. Why not assail the real problem - government protectionism and "governmentalism" which allows these trickster lobbyists to walk away with hundreds of billions in our tax dollars, and then tell us we have to "eat our peas" FO, moron

46 people liked this. Like Reply

typicalwhiteguy 12 hours ago in reply to Bruce Allan

These flea-bitten cretins will never go after the Kenyan. Its him and his union thug operatives that are behind this crap and are diligently working to ratchet it up; with the goal being to incite the majority of freedom-loving, hard-working Americans to take matters into their own hands. If they time it right and the fit hits the shan about this time next year, the Kenyan will be able to impose martial law, postpone the election indefinitely and start rounding up those the regime views as "trouble makers". This scenario is straight out of Saul Alinsky and it would usher in a period where Obama could seize power outside of the Constitution; much like Hugo Chavez. Don't give this Marxist POS an excuse; check your hot tempers and hold your fire (unless fired upon, of course). As soon as the cold weather starts hitting, these spoiled little tools will disperse back to mommy and daddy's warm basement. Meanwhile, they have successfully been used to distract the idiot media from the dirty deeds of of the regime that seem to surface daily now as well as the nose-diving economy.

5 people liked this. Like Reply

RUexperienced 1 day ago in reply to wodiej

Get over her. She is gone.

If she had guts she would have gotten in the race and debated the others.

12 people liked this. Like Reply

matthew s 23 hours ago in reply to RUexperienced

Sarah Palin lacking guts?

maybe she was told by everyone she asked that she had absolutely no chance to be elected president with the relentless beating the mainstream media has given her since 2008.

47 people liked this. Like Reply

RUexperienced 23 hours ago in reply to matthew s

Yes. Palin has no guts.

What kind of person with presidential qualities would snipe at the Republican candidates from behind the protection that is given to her by Fox News?

Palin has has nasty snarky thinks to say about nearly every candidate in the race (except Romney).

.... but regardless.... she is gone now. And we are not sorry.

3 people liked this. Like Reply

justbekool 21 hours ago in reply to RUexperienced

Your a joke you mention presidential qualities look at this moron thats in our white house. Palin is right not to run she can do so much more on the outside.

22 people liked this. Like Reply

RUexperienced 21 hours ago in reply to justbekool

The fact that Obama is not qualified to be president is all the more reason to replace him with somebody who has MORE experience and more reliability.

I want Obama gone.

14 people liked this. Like

Gary Letchford 23 hours ago in reply to RUexperienced

Apparently spoken by someone who has not even a sniff of a clue. This inexperienced preteen wishes he could vote for "Chief Talkalot", but alas being preteen, it is not to be.

To clarify.... Sarah Palin did a big favor when she did not enter the GOP fray. If she had, she would have had so many negative comments such as RUExperienced attempts to spout. That is not to say that she wouldn't have been a great addition, but the hate mongers in the USA are just too many to make it worthwhile.

35 people liked this. Like Reply

None None 21 hours ago in reply to Gary Letchford

Senator Palin of Alaska has a nice ring to it. She would kick @ss in the senate and would give Dirty Harry a heart attack if he had a heart.

26 people liked this. Like Reply

freeinaz 17 hours ago in reply to None None

She owns a house in AZ and I would welcome her to move here and take over the senate seat being vacated by Jon Kyl.

8 people liked this. Like Reply

socon 17 hours ago in reply to RUexperienced

You wish! Sarah Palin isn't going anywhere.

Like Reply

Tim Howe 23 hours ago

I live and work in DC and have ALWAYS found it so disgusting how many congressional and administration wives, siblings and children "lobby"...

its nothing but outright influence peddling and it is a disgrace and all these congress members that play this game should be jailed (and since its not illegal - how about just defeated in elections) They are scum.

Btw, I m a democrat.

78 people liked this. Like Reply

borninmombasa 23 hours ago in reply to Tim Howe they are scum?...er hello, they are democrats. We are a nation of gullible fools . But hey Hope and Change is just around the cornor. How's that DC voucher program working out? DC schools 50% graduation rate if you're a black kid. Obama gets elected, "they're thinking of sending their girls to "public school" ,funny of course they end up a Sidwell Friends private school. Also some poor kids get to attend Sidwell's via the DC school voucher program, and escape the hell that is DC public schools. What does Obama do , kill the voucher program via pressure from the teacher's union. Those unlucky DC kids, back to DC public hell , but the Limo Liberals kids are still safe at Sidwells. Bohener gets elected speaker of the house and the first thing he does is REINSTATE the DC voucher program.

And that my friend is why you are a Democrat.

58 people liked this. Like Reply

None None 22 hours ago in reply to Tim Howe

And you still admit to being a dimocRat? I would be hanging my head in shame.

14 people liked this.

MuhammedX 18 hours ago in reply to Tim Howe

Don't like your party but your logic here is sound. I couldn't agree more and if this practice were made illegal or (as you stated) these cretins of both parties were just defeated and tossed out we would be better for it. This kind of initiative is "bipartisanship" I could stand behind!

6 people liked this.

sunnyvaleken 23 hours ago

Washington is called the District of Corruption for a reason. With Chicago politicians in charge, well, they're having a field day spending our money.

Fire Obama and the rest of the Democrats in 2012. Then closely watch the replacements.

58 people liked this.

None None 22 hours ago in reply to sunnyvaleken

The District of Corruption and Crook County - How appropriate.

15 people liked this.

David 23 hours ago folks your administration has run completely amuck!!!! They are stealing from the taxpayer and doing so, without even hiding their actions. Its time for the folks to put a stop to this insanity fast, before the administration spends all of your and your children's children's children's money. Obama does not care about you the voter, and this attitude is now permeated through all of Washington. It is indeed the saddest sight in the current world. I weep for a great Nation, one who was once the greatest.

55 people liked this.

confedgal 22 hours ago in reply to David

What do you mean before he has spent all of our money? Too late. There are some of us who warned people, but no, they wouldn't listen. Now we're left hoping to find some change in the couch cushions. What's really interesting is that the people who are hurt the most by the fraud of a president and his minions are the ones who will vote for him again.

15 people liked this.

Like

Reply

Load more comments

Real-time updating is enabled.

Add New Comment

Post as ...

Subscribe | Store | Advertise | A
Copy