and what direction, building tons of wind turbines which leave a huge footprint taking up insane amounts of land turning our states into turbine fields? Our first step should be energy independence. Nuclear power care take us in that direction while leaving small foot print compared to huge foot print turbine fields leave. Nuclear energy is more dense and reliable.

If we want to be energy independent we need to us the resources we have here in America. Drill here. Yes work on alternative energy sources but in the process of getting there drill here using our own oil and natural gas supply's and build nuclear power plants which are cleaner and produce more energy.

Why just "work on" alternative energy while drilling for more expensive oil? Isn't that exactly what got us in this mess, more of the same failed policies of the last 30 years? Time for a new direction.
